When you are planning a ski vacation, you will find many accommodations available – hotels, condominiums, and private home rentals. They are all there, but it's up to you to choose the best type of lodging for your traveling arrangements. Be it a quiet romantic ski getaway, a school vacation that includes the whole family, or an extended trip for serious skiing, I've experienced them all. Now I want to present some of the best hotels, accommodations and lodging that I've visited and stayed in.

What puts the Hotel Terra at the top of resort hotels striving to be green is that staying at the Hotel Terra you are so lapped in luxury you forget you are surrounded by conscious and countless choices made on your behalf that benefit the health of our planet.

When you want to take your family on a ski vacation, Lake Tahoe is a wonderful destination and the Marriott Timber Lodge is a great location for both skiing and off-slope family activities.

Renting a chalet for a ski vacation is a common practice at all European ski resorts. I can't think of a better place to choose a ski chalet vacation on this side of the pond than at Mont Tremblant.

Jackson Hole, the ski resort, holds itself up to the world as the "Wild West" of skiing - rugged, tough and untamed. Well, that's true, but stay slopeside at the Teton Mountain Lodge and Spa and you'll forget any thoughts of roughin' it in the wild west.

The Wedgewood Hotel, located in the center of Vancouver, and a short drive from Cypress Mountain, is, in essence, an oasis of luxury and repose amid the hustle and bustle of Vancouver downtown.

Vail is a perfect location for a ski vacation, with plenty of activities for all ages, both on and off the slopes. On a recent trip to Vail, I stayed at the Vail Cascade Resort and literally walked out the door to the Chair 20 Lift. You can't get much better ski-in/ski-out access than that.

From the time you arrive to the time you leave the Whiteface Lodge, located in Lake Placid, New York and a short drive from Whiteface Mountain, you could get lost in the lap of Adirondack lodge luxury.
