5 of the Best Hotels for Lakeside Lounging in the U.S.

There's something classically American about a lakeside vacation. Those timeless rituals — s'mores by the fireside, flashlight tag, sundowners on the porch, having a Thoreau moment by placid waters, or embracing your inner Huck Finn with a nature hike along the river. As the trend for active vacations gains in popularity, lakeside hotels increasingly offer guests a myriad of activities both on and off the water. Regardless of the season, or the budget, there is a lake, a hotel, a cabin, a houseboat, or a tent for every mood and moment. Here's our pick of the best lakeside haunts to play, muse, and enjoy summer camp all over again.

1. Ritz Carlton, Lake Tahoe Truckee, California

The most luxurious hotel in the Tahoe area, the Ritz-Carlton Truckee, just a 10-minute drive from the lake, eschews its usual surfeit of marble and glitz, for a cozy, rustic design that speaks to the adventure-minded guests who roll up with kayaks, skis, and bikes atop their Subarus, and occasionally a dog or two in tow. Located within the Northstar California ski area, the resort boasts ski-in, ski-out access and ski concierge services—there's always an ever-conscious ski valet on hand to relieve you of your boots and skis each day.

In addition to the myriad of off-site activities, including paddle boarding and kayaking, there's a heated outdoor pool, an inviting fireplace in the lobby, and, for sybarites, an indulgent spa which offers a range of pampering treatments. The highly praised restaurant, Manzanita, showcases regional Californian cuisine with an emphasis on organic and sustainable ingredients. And, to top it off, each night by the fire pit guests can partake of the Art of the S'more (yes, seriously!) with the resident 'Marshmologist.'

Standard double rooms from $499 per night.

2. Whiteface Lodge

Lake Placid, New York

Built in 2005 by a former Olympian, the old school Whiteface Lodge has fast become something of a North East institution. Idyllically set at the heart of the 6-million-acre Adirondack Park on Lake Placid, Whiteface is an exercise in how to embrace the moment. Despite the lodge's homely aesthetic—wood beams, handcrafted Adirondack furnishings, deer antler lighting fixtures, floral arrangements, plush carpets, and cast-iron fireplaces—the lodge's amenities and services are well conceived and thoroughly modern. The spacious, all-suite rooms range in size (one to three bedrooms) and feature separate living areas and kitchens, and large bathrooms with heated floors and jacuzzi tubs.

With the giddy feel of a grown-up summer camp, few lodges cater to the needs of discriminating adults while encouraging the kids to run wild. There's a movie theater, bowling alley, ice cream parlor and an indoor/outdoor pool. The Kanu Kids Camp organizes all manner of activities from scavenger hunts on the private beach to paddle boarding, canoeing, and frisbee competitions. In winter you can slip on some snow shoes and explore the trails that criss cross the property.

Standard double rooms from $350 per night (suites from $500) including breakfast.

3. The Broadmoor

Colorado Springs, Colorado

The doyen of adventure travel resorts, the AAA Five-Diamond Broadmoor has seduced guests who like to combine outdoor adventure with luxury for almost 100 years. Blissfully located on the shores of Cheyenne Lake, at the heart of the Rocky Mountains, there are activities galore for every age and dispensation. You can spot elk and buffalo on a western horseback riding adventure, go white water rafting on the Arkansas River, fish at Chico Basin (one of Colorado's best fishing spots), play golf or tennis, canoe, kayak, or rock climb.

While there are close to 800 rooms, which vary from twee country cottages with their own bowling greens to classically appointed rooms, the service is gracious, the atmosphere intimate, and the dining superb.

Rates from $345 per night for a standard double room.

Source: <https://www.flickr.com/photos/ujelang/6236687364/>

4. Crater Lake Lodge

Crater Lake, Oregon

Stunning and foreboding in equal measure, Crater Lake, the deepest lake in the US also happens to be a flooded volcano that offers one of the country's most unusual dive sites. The surreal lava formations, underwater moss meadows, and bounty of freshwater fish are worthy of the 700-foot-trek down to Cove trail, the scuba diver's launch pad. When it comes to accommodation, it's location, location, location. Of the few places to stay within the park, Crater Lake Lodge, which first opened its doors to intrepid travelers in 1905, offers the most comfort, albeit of a rustic, simple nature—it's a 100-year-old hotel after all, and it shows.

While you may not be guaranteed a private shower in your room, the views are sublime and, after a day of adrenaline-infused adventure, there are few more relaxing spots to contemplate the lake than the lodge's front porch. After succulent elk chops for dinner, guests unwind and exchange travel tales by the fireplace.

Rates from $167 per night, for a double room.

Source: <https://www.flickr.com/photos/nicholsonandsons/3017496030>

5. Spider Lake Lodge Haywood, Wisconsin

In the northern reaches of Wisconsin, 20 miles from the chocolate box town of Haywood, the world seems to beat to its own drum at Spider Lake Lodge. Built in 1923, the lodge delivers that perfect marriage of rustic, authentic charm with superb attention to detail. There are just eight themed rooms, featuring whirlpools, fireplaces, and terrific views, all individually styled with flair and a keen eye to preserve the building's historic integrity.

A perfect weekend getaway for couples, there's a welcoming vibe to the place and pleasures are of the understated kind (the decadent breakfast is universally praised). After exploring the area by bike, or boating and fishing on the lake, guests reads books or mingle and drink wine by the fireplace, amidst sepia tinged photos and mementoes.

Rates from $169 per night, for a double room, including breakfast.

Save for later:

The Spa at Mandarin Oriental, Boston

We know that long flights and short breaks between meetings have the same effect on a man's muscles as they do on a female's. Spas know this, too. It only makes sense then that pampering in luxurious settings wouldn't be exclusive to ladies. Sure, in most spas, flowers are everywhere and the scents are reminiscent of jasmine perennials, but thanks to these Forbes Travel Guide Star-Rated spas around the country, male aches can start getting a bit more attention — just in time for Father's Day.

The Spa at Mandarin Oriental, Boston

The only Five-Star spa in Boston is giving guys a reason to man up and pamper themselves. "Broga" (yoga for bros) is a new fitness program designed just for men who need a little extra stretch and Zen in their day. This high-intensity strength workout is taught by trained Broga yoga instructor Matt Morin. "The classes combine traditional yoga with functional fitness exercises. The result is a practice that builds muscle, improves flexibility, reduces the risk of injury, relieves stress and improves balance," Morin says. Broga is an hour-long session that takes place every Saturday at 1 p.m. If that time doesn't work with your schedule, private sessions are available.

The Spa at Whiteface Lodge, Lake Placid, N.Y.

Whiteface Lodge in Lake Placid has pulled together a selection of treatments that target the outdoorsman. The Modern Man offerings include tried-and-true winners for guys such as a sports massage, but the menu also introduces a few new concepts such as The Outdoorsman, a relaxing, deep-cleansing facial that repairs and protects skin damaged by windburn, sun and overexposure to the elements; the Man Hands Booter, which exfoliates rough, dry skin while imperfect nails are trimmed, filed and buffed; and the Energizing Foot Remedy, a soothing Epsom salt soak with nail and cuticle grooming, exfoliation, Quench mask and massage.

The Ritz-Carlton Spa, Denver

By some accounts, Denver is the microbrew capital of the U.S. So, it's only appropriate the Four-Star spa at The Ritz-Carlton, Denver would pull together a couple of beer-infused treatments. One of these sudsy services is The Mile High Malt Scrub & Microbrew Massage, which mixes the powers of brew (a full-body exfoliation with a malt scrub; beer mask) and a bit of pressure (scalp massage) to send you to a place of amber-scented blissfulness. The other ale lover's dream is the Hops N' Honey Ultimate Pedicure that combines caramel, oats and a scoop of Hops N' Honey-flavored M! Bath Ice cream to create a hydrating, revitalizing experience for your feet. And before all good things come to an end, top this hoppy experience off by savoring a trio of microbrews in the relaxation lounge.

Take a Hike

3 June 2014 – Jessica Arb

Literally.

Summer is almost in full swing, and if you're not jitzney'ing out to the Hampton's or ferry'ing it to Fire Island every weekend, I highly suggest checking out New York State's GET OUT Campaign. i.e) Actually paying attention to the advertisements in the subway and getting the hell out of town.

I did just that this past weekend with a trek to The Adirondack Mountains near Lake Placid. Anyone reading this that knows me well, you are probably shaking your head envisioning my less than graceful self hiking up a mountain. But I'm here living and writing about it to let you know — it was magical. I needed a good dose of nature and where other than hiking up + down a mountain could I find it? Fresh air and endless vistas made me feel anew. My hamstrings on the other-hand... someone remind me upon my next trek to invest in something other than Nike Flyknits when jumping over brooks, streams and topsy turvy stones did make for a few awkward bambi moments.

A few links for your plotting and planning:

- The I Love New York travel guide: broken out by season. This sounds right up my alley: Sonnenberg Gardens Roses and Rose, any takers?
- Word on the hiking trail is Chacos are the best shoes — anyone care to agree? disagree?
- Plan your next adventure: Go Off-Metro
- If you're going to stay outside, say in a tent, stock up on supplies from Best Made Co. They do make the prettiest axe around.
- Or, just go for a walk outside your doors and play a species identification drinking game? Grab naturalist Leslie Day's Field Guide to the Natural World of New York City. Who knew we had such an array of flora and fauna inside our concrete jungle.
- If you find yourself near Lake Placid, I highly recommend staying at the Whiteface Lodge nestled in Adirondack Park. It was the most glamorous log cabin I've ever rested my head. Wood-beamed exterior, cozy carpet-strewn sitting rooms and cast-iron fireplaces, after a long hike it was as cozy as home. Not to mention, the in-house restaurant, Kanu, was exceptionally delicious.
